As people look back to the class of "66", they will remember us as hardworking and fun-loving normal teenagers. They will think of our "Mikado" and all the times that we were chosen as recipients for the Pep Jug, and they will smile. They will think of the "cannon" episode and they will laugh. Maybe they will also take some time to remember that we were a serious class. We have learned that we must face life, and try to defeat its many problems. We have learned to create ideas and to carry them through as best as we know how.

In the future a few of us may become famous. Maybe we will produce great musicians or government leaders or comedians or news reporters. But whether great or small, we'll always share two things: our school and our class. The friendships that we make now will be remembered and cherished throughout our lives. Whether we roam to the far ends of the earth, probe into space, or remain where we are, we shall all have our memories and with these our friends.

The foundation of our lives is made within these walls. We leave our Anacortes High to join the ranks of adulthood knowing that we are ready to face a world that is soon to have us as its leaders.
