

References

An aerial, grayscale photograph of a city. A large, modern stadium with a distinctive white, grid-like roof structure is the central focus. To the left, a long, multi-lane bridge spans across a body of water. The surrounding urban landscape is dense with buildings and greenery.

1. "The Story of Anacortes Veneer," A Worker-Owned Enterprise, M. N. Holland, unpublished manuscript, including a list of 1939 AVI shareholders, Anacortes Museum
2. Stock transfer ledger (recently donated to museum)
3. Book - "Even Seagulls Cry," Agnes Rands novel about her family, the plywood mill and Anacortes
4. Complete (nearly) list of names of shareholders and employees for over 500 people, including more detailed information on each person, Dick Erickson (2018)
5. Variety of public pictures, Anacortes Museum and others
6. AVI in context with other Co-op mills, Dick Erickson
7. "Anacortes Veneer Company," No. 18 in a series of monographs on the history of West Coast plywood plants, Published September, 1978 by the Plywood Pioneers Association
8. Article – "Richest Mill Hands in the Country" William Worden, The Saturday Evening Post, April 5, 1952

9. Anders Myhrman, Ekonomisk och industriell verksamhet (from 1950s) (posted on Loffe.net in Finland (Swedish) in 2007) (<http://www.loffe.net/emigration-mainmenu-59/1646-ekonomisk-och-industriell-verksamhet>)

10. Scandinavian/Nordic involvement in context

11. Wayne Melvin and Conrad Levinson oral interviews, Anacortes Museum

12. Research files at the museum and on-line
a. Catalog Number WF 2040

13. Anacortes American digital archives (will be available – currently 1890-1912)

14. Lloyd Crosby, mill fire pictures and video,

15. Worker-Owned Plywood Companies in the State of Washington, Henry G. Dahl Jr., The First National Bank of Everett, Everett, WA; submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements of the Pacific Coast Banking School conducted by western states bankers associations at the University of Washington, Seattle; April, 1957 (provided by John Pencavel, Stanford University, to Dick Erickson in 2018)

16. Other sources (AVI employees, contacts)

17. Plywood Cooperative Corporations, Conrad Mattson, Personal Letter, Seattle, December 23, 1995

18. Identity of Eleven Plywood Co-operatives in Washington State, John Pencavel, Stanford University Publications, 1993
19. Worker-Owned Firms: Lessons from the Pacific Northwest Co-ops, John Pencavel, May 2001, The Joseph Krislov Workshop in Labor Economics and Industrial Relations, Wisconsin.seminar
20. Anders Myhrman book
21. The Swedish Finn Historical Society, Seattle, WA (www.swedishfinnhistoricalsociety.org/)
22. Dick and Nancy Erickson, memories and pictures
23. Dennis Forsyth, pictures
24. Steve Berentson, pictures